PANAMA-PACIFIC ALLEGORICAL PAINTING

The three figures represent allegorically, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

The middle figure is "Panama" in her national color, with outstretched arms, holding in one hand the ship and the globe in the other, presenting Commerce to the world. To her left, gracefully posed and draped in crimson, is the figure representing "Atlantic and Manufacturing," "Liberty" enlightening the world by the torch upheld with her right hand. The figure to the right is "Pacific," draped in Royal Purple, holding in her lap the Horn of Plenty, portraying the vast abundance of the undeveloped agricultural interests of this modern "LAND OF CANAAN."

The three figures being partly draped symbolize the Semi-Tropical Zone of the Pacific Coast, with the beautiful Sunset of California so often seen upon the shores of the Pacific as pictured in the background of the conception.

Last, but not least, the trio gracefully posing on the Rock of Foundation representing the substantial opportunities of the Pacific.
