

The "Three Rows"

When plate 3 was made, the 9th vertical row of the left pane was laid down slightly off of vertical. As the row was entered top to bottom, the error in placement became worse as the row progressed down the plate. This resulted in an increase in the space between the 8th and 9th row positions and a decrease in the space between the 9th and 10th row positions.

In order to "hide" the increasing space error, the engraver added an extra outer frame line to the right side of the 8th row positions, and to the left side of the 9th row positions. 89L3 and 99L3 have 2 extra frame lines on the left. This made the affected stamps appear wider.

To "hide" the decreasing space error, the engraver replaced the right inner line of the 9th row positions with the outer frame line, thus reducing the width of the stamps. This was also done to the left side of the bottom 4 positions of the 10th row.
